A Message to the Graduates from President Thomas J. LeBlanc

Nearly 200 years ago, the George Washington University was established to educate the best and brightest future leaders right here in Washington, D.C.

Today, that leader is you.

You came to GW Law, the oldest law school in the District of Columbia, motivated and passionate, ready to contribute to this diverse and vibrant community of learning that serves the public good.

During your time here, you pursued scholarship with focus, learned with wonder and debated with respect. You sought excellence, in and out of the classroom, and you offered your expertise through pro bono service for those in need.

You have succeeded despite setbacks, including an unexpected conclusion to your time on campus, and you are prepared for the uncertainty that we will face in a changed world after this global health pandemic.

Through it all, you have chosen to lead. Today, you are ready to lead a new adventure.

Having built on the legacy of those who came before you, you will now be an inspiration for those who come after. I know that you will bring distinction not only to yourselves but also to your families, to your communities around the world and, beginning today, to your alma mater.

As you join GW Law's alumni community, I wish you many fulfilling years of continued learning—but wherever it may take you, I hope you choose to lead.

Congratulations!

Thomas J. LeBlanc
President

A MESSAGE FROM THE DEAN

Christopher
Alan Bracey

Interim Dean and Professor of Law, GW Vice Provost for Faculty Affairs

Congratulations, Class of 2020!

I know that you have looked forward to this day for a long time. Commencement is the culmination of years of hard work by not only students, but your families and other loved ones. I commend you on successfully completing your studies during one of the most difficult times in recent history.

Your final semester at GW Law was marked by an unprecedented global pandemic, creating more challenges than any of us anticipated. In spite of those challenges, each one of you has accomplished what you set out to do when you walked into our doors as a first-year student. Today, you become a lawyer.

I have had the incredible privilege of serving as your Interim Dean this academic year. During this last semester, perhaps one of the most challenging I have experienced as an administrator, I have found myself energized and inspired by the relentless strength and spirit of the class of 2020. You came here to change the world. And now, I have no doubt that you will do just that.

On behalf of our entire faculty and staff, congratulations on reaching this significant milestone. I am deeply grateful for your resilience in the face of adversity. We are committed to celebrating this milestone with you, and until then, I send my very best wishes to each of you for good health, happiness, and success.

You will forever be part of the GW Law alumni family. As you write the next chapter in our law school's rich and enduring history, remember that with the knowledge and skills you have acquired comes a responsibility to enrich society and work for the greater good. If you do, your rewards will be many.

Sincerely,

Christopher Alan Bracey

*Interim Dean and Professor of Law
GW Vice Provost for Faculty Affairs*

THE GEORGE WASHINGTON UNIVERSITY LAW SCHOOL

The George Washington University Law School, the oldest law school in the District of Columbia, was established in 1865 with a formal program of two years of study. This was largely through the efforts of the Reverend Whitefield Samson, President of Columbian College, whose action resulted in the purchase of a separate building for holding law classes. The building had belonged to Trinity Church, of which Francis Scott Key had been senior warden. It was occupied by the law school until 1884.

Sixty graduates, from 22 of the then 37 states, received degrees in 1867. The school continued to have a student body and a faculty that reflected the fact that it was at the seat of our nation's government. Supreme Court Justices David J. Brewer and John Marshall Harlan were among the prominent members of the bench and bar who were on the faculty.

In 1877, one year after the first such program was adopted in the United States, the law school instituted a course leading to the degree of master of laws. In 1898, the course of instruction for the degree of bachelor of laws was extended to three years. The law school took part in 1900 in the organization of the Association of American Law Schools.

Over the past century, the law school has expanded its course and seminar offerings with consideration of the needs of first-degree and graduate students. The degree of doctor of juridical science was instituted in 1940. In 1946, the law school began accepting foreign attorneys into specially designated programs. Today, lawyers from the United States and abroad are accepted into the master of laws program.

In 1954, the National University School of Law, which had held an important place in legal education in the District of Columbia since 1869, was absorbed by the George Washington University Law School.

Since 1954, special programs of advanced study have enriched the basic curriculum. At present these include business and finance law; environmental and energy law; intellectual property law; international and comparative law; government procurement law; litigation and dispute resolution; national security and cybersecurity law; and national security and U.S. foreign relations law. These special programs reflect the breadth in public law for which the law school is well known. Additionally, a clinical law program has been developed that is the equal of that at any law school in the nation.

The law school has a total enrollment of approximately 2,000 students. Approximately 1,400 students are in the full-time division for the JD degree and 300 are enrolled in the part-time division. Three hundred students, representing 49 countries, are enrolled in graduate law degree programs.

ENERGY LAW ADVISORY COUNCIL

The law school's Energy Law Advisory Council is composed of leaders in the field of energy. The council provides strategic direction to the law school's Sustainable Energy Initiative, a cutting-edge research and policy development program that was founded and structured with alumni guidance. The council also provides support and advice regarding curriculum, career development, and extracurricular affairs affecting energy and environmental law students.
